

Colorado Fly Fishing

Boxwood Gulch offers several species of trout for the angler who enjoys a mixed bag or perhaps hasn't experienced the pleasure of fighting a certain trout breed before. Tactics for each of our species varies from midging for super selective rainbows, to streamer fishing for monster browns. Boxwood Gulches population is made up of over 1500 fish on 1 mile of water with trout ranging from 12 inch brookies to 30 inch bows and browns - 50% rainbows, 30% browns, 20% cutbows, snake river cutthroats, brookies, and the elusive palomino rainbow.

- Big fish and plenty of them---and you will catch some of them.
- Total Privacy- Boxwood section: If your group is 8 or more only your group will be fishing the property. If fewer than 8 anglers we may add anglers. They will have their own guide and share the property independent of your group. At Long Meadow section, you may see a few other anglers not in your group.

Boxwood Bows

Highly successful spawns in recent years have increased the numbers of young fish which subsequently brought the average size down from 19" to 17", but has increased anglers catches from 15 to 20+ fish per angler.

Always in tune to the surface, Boxwood bows start rising in March and are still taking hoppers and attractor patterns well into October. BIG BOWS? One only has to glance at the big fish board in Boxwoods clubhouse to see countless photos of elated anglers holding fish of 24 and 28" to see what awaits them among the riffles and runs of Boxwood Gulch.

Boxwood Gulch offers several species of trout for the angler who enjoys a mixed bag or perhaps hasn't experienced the pleasure of fighting a certain trout breed before.

Tactics for each of our species varies from midging for super selective rainbows, to streamer fishing for monster browns. Boxwood Gulches population is made up of over 1500 fish on 1 mile of water with trout ranging from 12 inch brookies to 30 inch bows and browns - 50% rainbows, 30% browns, 20% cutbows, snake river cutthroats, brookies, and the elusive palomino rainbow.

Boxwood Browns

Aggressive, wary, and stout best describes the browns that average 18" and are full of color and fight. The fisher that likes to swing a bugger in pocket water or skate a mouse pattern across a deep run will find him or herself targeting this species simply because of the rod jarring strikes.

Bigger browns of the 2 foot caliber are evening predators, and are usually taken on large streamers like sculpins or string leeches as twilight begins to shroud overhanging willows where the ambush by a monster brown is usually the big fish of the day.

Cutbows- POWER, HEAVY, LINE BREAKERS. Easy to recognize immediately after the hook set because of their leaping ability and speed. This fish rarely reaches 22" in length, but boasts the biggest girth of all Boxwood trout. With a distinct love for LARGE flies, the Cutbow is the first to knock a mouse pattern off the water in early summer or smack a hopper with reckless abandon.

For more information please visit

<http://www.boxwoodgulch.com>